SACRAMENTO – The American Health Care Association (AHCA)/National Center for Assisted Living (NCAL) National Quality Awards Program has announced the names of the long-term care providers that earned this year's Silver – Achievement in Quality Award. The award is the second of three distinctions possible through the program for facilities that serve as models of excellence in providing high-quality care.

This year's award winners include the following:

Cambridge Healthcare Services, which owns and operates the first four facilities, is committed to delivering quality care to Californians. Receiving the 2025 Silver – Achievement in Quality Award is a testament to the organization's ongoing focus and dedication.

"Achieving the Silver – Achievement in Quality Award represents a significant milestone on the journey to excellence in long-term care," said CAHF CEO/President Cassie Dunham. "It underscores each facility's commitment to continuous improvement, staff-driven innovation, and a deep dedication to enhancing the lives of those they serve."

The program has three levels: Bronze, Silver, and Gold. As a recipient of the Silver – Achievement in Quality Award, systematic advancements in quality, plans for continual improvement, and sustainable organizational goals have all been demonstrated.

AHCA/NCAL announced the recipients of the Bronze – Commitment to Quality Award on May 30, including 12 recipients from California.
