It's a "normal day," until it isn't...

The possibility of an armed intruder or active shooter in any type of residence or facility is simply a reality that we are forced to live with. Long-term care facilities are not immune from this threat and have likely identified this specific peril in their Hazard Vulnerability Assessment.

This informative and interactive session will take a deep dive into the concept of an armed intruder, or active shooter in a health care facility to help attendees understand that violence of this caliber can happen anywhere and how it can be managed.

Workshop highlights include:

- Promote the importance of planning and preparing for "The Unthinkable"
- Case study review of a tragic incident that occurred in a skilled nursing facility where several people were killed
- Stress the importance of quick decision-making during these type of fast-moving incidents
- Leadership in the absence of leadership
- Promote tactical considerations to help protect lives
- Learn the critical options that must be considered during a shooting with a spotlight on, "The Four Outs"
- Promote the importance of recovering both physically and emotionally from "The Unthinkable"
- Participation in a facilitated tabletop exercise that will focus on managing specific elements of a shooting in a health care facility
